

PIPPA MIDDLETON
JOINS PRINCESS BEATRICE TO HELP RAISE FUNDS FOR HAITI

The Reuben Foundation and Virgin Unite's fundraiser for Haiti was the place to be for the smart young London social set last week. Left: Kate Middleton's siblings, Pippa and James. Above: Princess Beatrice chats with her father Prince Andrew's close friend, energy executive Goga Ashkenazi. Right: Tamara Ecclestone, daughter of Formula One billionaire Bernie

The brightest young stars of the social scene lent their shine to a good cause at a London fundraising bash for Haiti, a country still suffering from the devastating earthquake earlier this year.

Sponsored by The Reuben Foundation and Virgin Unite, the party boasted a guest list including Princess Beatrice, accompanied by long-term boyfriend Dave Clark, as well as a roster of heavy-hitting surnames: Pippa and James Middleton, Holly and Sam Branson and Tamara Ecclestone among them.

Invitees tucked into a four-course menu from lobster claws to chocolate mousse, bid on auction lots like drinks and scrabble with Joan Collins, and enjoyed a performance by pop star Estelle – but most importantly raised cash for Free the Children and SOS Children's Villages, the charities benefitting from the night.

PHOTOS: DONFEATURIES.COM