

eventmagazine.co.uk

August 5th 2010

Home : Altitude 360 at Millbank Tower to create pop-venue New York-style viewing space: ticket giveaway

Altitude 360 at Millbank Tower to create pop-venue New York-style viewing space: ticket giveaway

David Quainton, 05 August 2010

 7 comments on this article.

The 29th floor of London's Millbank Tower is to be turned into an Empire State Building-style viewing gallery and Event has ten pairs of tickets to give away for the venue.

Millbank Tower is home to Altitude 360° which is creating the pop-up gallery for use in August. Stand-up comics will be on hand to talk about the views across London and point out key landmarks.

The views will be significant: the 118m Millbank Tower is not only one of the capital's tallest buildings, but is also Grade II listed.

"It really does offer a completely different way for visitors from home and abroad to view our amazing capital," said Altitude London marketing director Peter Kerwood.

The gallery is open Fridays to Sundays from 13 to 29 August.

To win tickets to the viewing gallery simply tell register and tell Event below what your favourite view is in London and why?

LATEST NEWS

Bluewater holds Golden Bolt ceremony for £60m event space

Leicester Square venue Sound London goes into administration

Arena Leisure celebrates 13% rise in corporate hospitality attendance